albor advisory

A TRAINING PROGRAM FOR SALES AND MARKETING TEAMS

Commercial finance for permacrisis markets

Practical finance for the people who quote, negotiate and plan campaigns where currencies, inflation and interest rates keep moving. Learners practice on their own deals and leave able to protect margin and cash.

About 8 h

Online finance foundations in ten self-paced modules. No finance training needed.

4 workshops

Half-day sessions in person, led by a trainer, with role-plays and a capstone case.

2 tracks

A shared program for everyone, with a sales or a marketing session in workshop 3.

hello@alboradvisory.com · alboradvisory.com

Istanbul

In these markets, a signed order is not yet money

In a stable market, a signed order is almost as safe as cash. In a permacrisis market, its value keeps changing until the cash arrives, sometimes by more than the whole margin.

A permacrisis market is one where instability is the normal condition, year after year. Customers there raise pricing, credit and currency in the first meetings, and these decide whether a deal makes money. This program prepares teams for that conversation.

Three patterns, three ways a deal loses value

Steady decline

The currency loses value every month. Inflation and interest rates stay very high for years.

Turkey: inflation 29.77% in October 2026, policy rate 36%, lira near 50 per US dollar. Source: Trading Economics.

Sudden step

The currency is held for a time, then falls sharply, and dollars and euros become scarce.

Nigeria: about 463 naira per US dollar before the June 2023 float, about 1,354 by May 2024. Source: BusinessDay.

Weak payers

Inflation is moderate, but the currency swings and public customers pay late.

South Africa: 90,856 government invoices worth R15.5 billion unpaid past 30 days at the end of December 2025. Source: SAnews.

The pressure shows in the numbers of Turkish companies report late payment, and over a third of invoices are overdue.

86%

Atradius Payment Practices Barometer, Türkiye, June 2026

37%

of trade finance applications were rejected by African banks between 2020 and 2024.

African Development Bank report, via GTR

Sh465.87bn

of unpaid bills (Kenyan shillings) were owed by government agencies at 31 March 2026.

Capital FM, citing the Controller of Budget

Figures checked on 13 November 2026. Market figures change monthly.

From the basics to a live deal

Part A teaches the finance basics and assumes no finance training. The workshops apply them to the deals sellers and marketers handle every week.

After the program, learners can

1. Quote in a moving currency, with a currency clause they can explain.
2. Check who will really pay, with what money, and set terms to match.
3. Build a payment schedule and choose the right security for the payer.
4. Find where margin is lost, defend a price and lead a price increase.
5. Offer a way to pay when a customer has the need but not the cash.
6. Recognize red lines on currency rules, sanctions and integrity.
7. Sales track: take long deals to cash and review distributors.
8. Marketing track: reset prices and segment by ability to pay.

What is at stake on one deal

24%

of a 25% margin is lost on a rand price with dollar costs, if the dollar rises 8%.

11.1%

of the invoice is the cost of 90 days of credit when money costs 45% a year.

Worked examples from modules A7 and A4 of the program. The figures are illustrations.

Who it is for

Sellers, key account managers, channel managers, marketers and pricing staff who work in or sell into markets such as Turkey, Egypt, Nigeria, Kenya and South Africa.

How it teaches

Every module has the same parts: the basics, a method, a worked example, practice and a task on a real customer. Five workshop modules add a role-play.

How the program runs

About 22 h 45 min in total: about 8 h 05 min online and 14 h 40 min in person.

Part A · Finance foundations Online, self-paced · 8 h 05 min	A1 How a business makes money · A2 Price, cost and margin · A3 Interest and the time value of money · A4 Cash, working capital and credit · A5 Investment decisions · A6 Inflation · A7 Exchange rates and currency risk · A8 Reading a customer's financial health · A9 Payment instruments and guarantees · A10 Trade terms and taxes on a sale. Ten modules of 40 to 60 minutes. Learners with finance training can skip a module if they pass its practice questions.
Workshop 1 · Price and payer Trainer-led · 3 h 40 min	B1 Quoting and pricing when the currency moves · B2 Qualifying the payer and the source of funds
Workshop 2 · Terms and margin Trainer-led · 3 h 45 min	B3 Structuring payment terms and security · B4 Protecting margin: landed cost, pocket price, discounts and price increases
Workshop 3 · Cash and track session Trainer-led · 3 h 45 min	B5 Selling when the customer is short of cash. Then the room splits. Sales track: B6 Managing the long deal and B7 Working with distributors and partners. Marketing track: B8 Marketing in a moving currency.
Workshop 4 · Red lines and capstone Trainer-led · 3 h 30 min	B9 Red lines: currency rules, sanctions and integrity · Capstone case: one deal from quote to cash · Final quiz · Personal action plan

How learning is checked

- Practice questions in every module
- Final quiz of 20 questions, pass mark 16
- A task on a real account within 30 days, approved by the learner's manager
- Short follow-up quizzes at 7, 21 and 60 days
- A personal action plan, shared with the manager

Built around your business

- Delivery in English or Turkish
- Country figures updated for your markets
- Your own rules on quote validity, discount limits, payment terms, currency clauses and credit approval
- Part A can run as two classroom half days where internet access is poor
- The four workshops can run as two full days

Talk to us about a program for your team

hello@alboradvisory.com · alboradvisory.com · Istanbul